CRIME.-We have recorded quite a numer of deeds by violence during the pas welve months. Crime, the result of personal difficulties, seems on the increase everywhere. Excessive indulgence in whisky drinking is the immediate cause of the bulk of these crimes; but still there is a ceper cause. It lies in the false and corupt education of the age. Young men is hese days are taught by their elders, both y precept and example, to look no higher han money. Even amid the sacred sanetuaries of home, they seldom see or hear the worship of any other God. They see men looked up to as superior beings, simply be cause of their great possessions. They see men in high positions of public trust, who possess no other qualification. They see men ommit crimes and walk forth unwhipped of justice, for which others are imprisoned and branded for life. In all the associations of life they see and feel the supreme power of money. They find the political arena a
